As an executive with major corporations who has dealt with the hiring process, I live this book. “Next Job, Best Job” is a breath of fresh air. Author Rob Burnett has been “in between jobs again” #IBJA - like the rest of us - and has figured out how to navigate the entire job hunting process from start to hire. He has helped many job seekers because he understands how to find the right talent.

Resume rebuilding, digital job site profiles and the interview process have all been reinvented for these new employment times we live in.

If you are on the hiring side of the table, read this book to discover what a true expert headhunter knows about the process and take your Human Resources department out of the equation.

If you are #IBJA, buy this book (it's a quick & entertaining read) and get refocused on what matters most and how to avoid the pitfalls so you don't get lost in that sea of resumes on the hiring manager's desk.

Kudos, Rob, for helping us all in time of need.
